But what is it that makes us stand out among other healthcare recruitment agencies?

That's what we are here to explore today. We've taken some time to outline the reasons agency workers enjoy working for Nurxcel, and why we encourage people who might be thinking about choosing agency healthcare as a career to register with us.

What support do we provide for agency workers?

Our main focus is to provide all our agency workers with the ability to manage their own workload. We want to support our care staff and help them achieve their individual life goals, whatever they may be. We work hard to organize care shifts to fit around other life commitments such as further education, family life, another job, or global travel. Nurxcel also ensures any agency workers that want to progress in their career have access to a wide range of care experiences so they can broaden their career goals and we also provide easy access to further training resources to support this.

Furthermore, at Nurxcel we continuously promote a positive, proud, and happy working environment so that our agency workers feel welcomed and valued in their jobs. We regularly check in with our teams to make sure they are happy with their workload, we host team meetings to build trust among colleagues and to build a caring and supportive community.

How can we help you find rewarding jobs in care?

Nurxcel offers care staffing solutions across a wide range of healthcare settings. This means we are better equipped to offer our agency workers shifts that suit their specific set of care skills.

Our unique recruitment and induction process does differ from other healthcare recruitment agencies in that we only recruit people who are truly passionate about care. It's very important to us that all our agency workers are prepared to cover shifts that include everything from personal care, such as bathing and dressing, to supporting children with learning disabilities.

How does agency healthcare differ?

Agency healthcare can be an excellent choice to help support a person's overall career goals, in care or recruitment, and bolster their life and work experiences.
